

Tax relief plan okayed by committee

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says the $7.1-billion tax relief plan approved by a special legislative committee is "a significant and historic bill."

But the Democratic governor did not promise that he would sign the measure in its current form.

He cited still-unanswered questions about the size of the budget surplus and the full costs of the tax relief bill and a pending $4.1-billion school finance bill.

A special legislative committee agreed Monday on a tax shift bill that would impose $2.5 billion in new taxes over the next five years and give $7.1 billion in tax relief for a net tax reduction of $4.6 billion.

Most of the tax relief would go to homeowners in annual rebate checks which would average $225 and to renters in rebate checks averaging $113.

Most of the new taxes would be imposed on business to make up for the proposed abolition of the business inventory tax, a $443-million annual source of revenue which both liberals and conservatives say drives businesses and jobs out of the state.

In a telephone interview, Brown was enthusiastic about the compromise approved by the tax committee.

"We may have to cut some, but the concepts are there. The legislators have done their job," he said.

But Brown said figures on the tax bill and on the school finance bill indicate "one or the other will have to be cut."

Brown said if he signed both the schools and tax measures in their current forms it would require a tax increase in two to three years, which he said is "unacceptable."

Brown said the proposed higher bank and corporation tax rate proposed in the bill and other new taxes on business would not violate his no-new-taxes pledge because "they are a tradeoff."

"We've talked to a lot of business people, and most of them support this tradeoff. We completely eliminate the business inventory tax. That is an historic move," Brown said.

Five-acre fire hits San Dimas

The San Dimas area — plagued by a rash of brush fires within the past month — was the scene of another potentially dangerous brush fire Monday afternoon.

Los Angeles County firefighters, assisted by crews from San Gabriel Canyon, Glenn Rockey and Arroyo Seco, confined the fire to five acres near Cypress Boulevard between Valley Center and Lone Hill roads. The only loss was a fence valued at $100.

A department spokesman said the cause of the fire is under investigation today, but it possibly was started by youngsters who frequently play in the area.

The fire crew from Arroyo Seco "just happened to be in the area, spotted the smoke and were first on the scene," officials said.

A number of brush fires have occurred in the area of Puddingstone Park and San Dimas Park and all are under investigation.

Pidgeon's chances 'very, very good'

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Walter Pidgeon's chances of recovery following an operation to remove a blood clot on the brain are reported "very, very good."

An official at St. John's Hospital said doctors gave the hopeful prognosis Monday.

The 78-year-old Pidgeon was admitted here Aug. 4 and has been in stable condition in the intensive care ward. He underwent surgery last Friday night.

Costing $12,000

Montclair Center water system to be installed

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

A water system meeting fire and safety and building code regulations will be installed in the new Montclair Community Center at a cost of $12,000.

Assistant City Administrator Mike Milhiser recommended Monday night that the Montclair City Council approve the transfer of $12,000 from the contingency, or reserve, account for the construction of a water loop system for the proposed city building. He outlined the hazards of an inadequate water system to serve the new facility, the worst of which would be insufficient amount of water to extinguish any possible fire.

GETTING AN EDGE ON BLAZE

130,500-acre blaze may soon be contained

By The Associated Press

In the wake of the Marble-Cone inferno is "complete devastation" resembling the aftermath of an atomic bomb, but the fire still searing Central California coastland may soon be contained, forestry officials said today.

The blaze, now the third largest in the state's history, has consumed 130,500 acres in the Los Padres National Forest and adjacent private land. It was reported 60 per cent contained.

Back-burning — fire lines constructed ahead of the path of the fire with the brush or fuel burned in between — so far has proven effective, officials said.

"We're hoping by Thursday we'll have the (back-burning) line tied in all the way," said William Morrison, U.S. Forest Service spokesman. "If everything goes right then, it will probably be only a few days until it will be contained."

Besides the huge Marble-Cone fire, six other fires still burned in drought-parched California, the state Department of Forestry said.

Lightning, the culprit in a chain of nearly 1,000 fires that began Aug. 1, sparked the newest blaze Monday near Lake Elsinore in Riverside County. Flames engulfed 400 acres, but the fire was hoped to be contained later today, the CDF said.

The Marble-Cone was among those torched by nature and officials would only hazard a damage estimate of "several millions of dollars."

"It looks almost like pictures of Hiroshima after the atomic bomb," Morrison said. "There are areas of complete devastation, with only little twigs sticking out."

Morrison said officials estimated the energy released by burning 1,000 acres in the fire zone was "equivalent to a one megaton atomic bomb."

In assessing the siege at Marble-Cone, he added, "The fire is in a way a part of a natural cycle. The forest will almost begin to rebuild immediately." Some small animals — lizards, rodents — have already returned to their homes in the blackened brushland, he said.

State briefs

Bing takes a 'trial run'

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — Bing Crosby takes to the boards again tonight to see "if I can still function" after a 20-foot fall from a stage last March severely hurt his back.

The 73-year-old entertainer calls his one-night stand at the Concord Pavilion, 35 miles east of his Hillsborough home, a "trial run" before a tour that will take him and his family to Norway, Sweden and England.

Comfortably attired at home in slacks and sweater, Bing told a reporter he's "still a little limpy" from the accident at a Pasadena auditorium.

Crosby toppled backwards off the stage while taping a television show commemorating his 50 years in show business. He ruptured a spinal disc and was hospitalized three weeks; he recuperated at home.

Always close by him was his second wife, Kathryn, a registered nurse. They will celebrate their 20th wedding anniversary in the fall.

Crosby let out a whooping laugh at a suggestion he might at last be planning to pack in the career that started with the dance bands in 1925.

"I'd never retire completely," scoffed the old crooner. "I don't mind being the gray eminence of show business as long as people keep wanting to see me."

Ruling on deportation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If suspected Nazi war criminal Andrija Artukovic is to be deported, new evidence must be provided by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, a federal court judge has ruled.

U.S. District Court Judge Irving Hill handed down his ruling Monday in response to a lawsuit filed by Artukovic in June against U.S. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell and three Immigration and Naturalization Service officials.

Artukovic, 76, of Seal Beach claimed in the suit that INS officials do not have the authority to revoke his 1959 stay of deportation.

He contends only the Board of Immigration Appeals in Washington has the authority to deport him if it uncovers "new evidence" of Nazi collaboration during World War II.

However, the judge pointed out his ruling rested on a "narrow technical issue" and had nothing to do with "what (Artukovic) may or may not have done during World War II."

Exams on energy saving

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Bob Foster, conservation chief of the state Energy Commission, put his money where his mouth is.

He told the operators of the state's buildings he would examine their facilities for ways to save energy — and if he didn't find any, they wouldn't have to pay for the examinations.

Foster figures the statewide examinations this year will cost his agency about $150,000, to be covered by transfer payments from the agencies whose facilities are examined.

Starting in May, Foster first approached the state Military Department and Department of Transportation. The gamble paid: Foster says that on only six of their facilities, his five-man team of energy auditors found ways to save about $101,000 in utility bills this year.

Swimming Lake Powell

PAGE, Ariz. (AP) — A California man survived his first day of a marathon swim in Lake Powell, but it was not immediately known how many of the 200 miles John de la Cruz has covered.

De la Cruz, 47, of Pico Rivera, plunged into the lake near Moab, Utah, Monday in an attempt to swim the length to this northwest Arizona resort city in six days.

De la Cruz suffered a broken vertebra 12 years ago in an industrial accident and suffered a gunshot wound to his back last year in a hunting accident. Doctors told the former Air Force marathon swimmer that swimming would be the best way to regain use of his legs.

While he swims, with an accompanying crew of six, De la Cruz hopes to raise $50,000 from pledges for the Serra Foundation, a nonprofit group which supports the visually handicapped in Norwalk.

De la Cruz, who swam 40 miles in this Colorado River impound in 1968 and has swum the 52-mile round trip from Long Beach to Avalon, Calif., five times, said before he started the swim, "I'm not overconfident, but I am optimistic."

Toyota recalls 2 models

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., says it will recall about 134,000 Corona and Mark II model cars produced during 1970 and 1971.

A company spokesman said Monday a joint investigation with the National Highway Traffic Safety Commission found that the neutral start switch on the floor-mounted automatic transmission could short circuit, causing smoke in some cases.

Owners of the affected cars will be notified by mail and the switch will be replaced at no cost to the owner, the spokesman said.

Bingo rules approved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite warnings from the police department and one city councilman Las Vegas gamblers would flock to Los Angeles, the City Council has unanimously approved rules to govern its fledgling bingo industry.

Key victories were won Monday by the labor unions, chambers of commerce, fraternal clubs and charities that conduct bingo games for fund raising. Strict limits on the hours and days for bingo were defeated.

One defeated amendment would have limited bingo to two days a week for any licensee and prevented a facility from being used more than twice a week. Another would have restricted bingo to between noon and 10 p.m.

However, the rules adopted by the council will allow bingo playing up to three days a week with no restriction on the number of days any one facility can be used for the game. Each bingo licensee is allowed to operate up to six hours a day, anytime between noon and midnight.

Allaway case goes to jury

SANTA ANA (AP) — Jurors have begun deliberating the fate of accused mass murderer Edward Charles Allaway in the death of seven persons during a shooting spree at California State University at Fullerton.

The case went to the jury Monday after prosecution and defense attorneys disputed whether Allaway should be found guilty of first- or second-degree murder.

The seven-woman, five-man panel spent three hours deliberating before retiring for the day.

Allaway is accused of seven counts of murder, two of attempted murder and two of assault.

Allaway's attorney, Deputy Public Defender Ron Butler summed up his plea with a concession that the 37-year-old janitor was responsible for the shooting spree on July 12, 1976.

"We have not contested what happened," Butler said. "We're not contesting that he is guilty of murder. But the prosecutor has not proven beyond a shadow of a doubt and to a moral certainty that Ed Allaway is guilty of first-degree murder."

Nash's Pomona Mall store to close

Officials of Nash's Department Store, which has operated in Pomona for more than 20 years, have announced the Pomona Mall store will go out of business next month. Manager Louis Craig said the store will begin liquidating its inventory immediately, with full closure expected in about four weeks.

Nash's first opened in Pomona in 1956 at the Indian Hill Center, then called Pomona Valley Center. In 1968 the Pomona Mall store was opened.

After two years the company decided to close the Indian Hill location and keep the mall store going.

With the closing of the Pomona store coming on the heels of last year's burning of Nash's main store in Pasadena, the former chain operation is now down to one location in Long Beach.

He was his brother's keeper

Boy, 10, chooses death to caged existence

NEW YORK (AP) — Apartment 6J at 580 Castle Hill Avenue in the Bronx was George Curet's home, his cage and ultimately the site he chose for his self-destruction. He was 10.

Hour after hour, day after day, George Curet was left in the apartment to tend to his 6-year-old brother, Bruce. Their mother and two older brothers worked. Their father did not live with them.

All this meant that the two boys idled away their hours inside, while other children from the 12-story project played outside.

A resident of the building described it as "run-down" but "the place to come to from burnt-out buildings."

It was in that setting that George Curet lived and George Curet died.

"This year, he didn't come down a lot. His mother wouldn't let him come down," said Robert Alvarado, 14, who described himself and his 10-year-old brother Robby as George's only friends in the building.

"The only time he ever came down was to ride his bicycle. But he only did that a couple of times a year. His older brothers would never take him anywhere.

"He was a quiet kid," Alvarado said. "He didn't like to mess around. And besides, he always had to take care of his brother."

His mother wasn't always happy with the way George handled Bruce. The younger boy would often lose things or else cry to his mother that his older brother had mistreated him. George would be blamed — and sometimes yelled at or maybe hit.

That, at least, is the version Robert Alvarado tells. George wouldn't talk about it — not even to his few friends, including Alvarado.

"I never heard him say nothing," the youth admitted.

Typically, the two brothers were alone in the apartment Monday morning when telephone company worker McKinley Alston arrived to install a phone. But George Curet's patience and hopes had run out.

"Is your mother home?" Alston asked the younger boy.

"No, just my brother," the young boy said. "But he's hanging."

Alston found George hanging from a closet door, a belt tied around his neck, a chair tipped over beneath him. "A definite suicide," a police spokesman said.

Bruce told police his older brother had asked him to kick the chair out from under him. When he refused, George kicked the chair out for himself.

Carter to fall short of goals

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may be impossible for President Carter to achieve each of his three major goals of stemming inflation, reducing unemployment and balancing the nation's budget by 1981, a congressional study says.

The study, prepared for the Joint Economic Committee, was released Monday by Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo. It used computer models of the economy and other techniques to examine chances for Carter's three major aims for 1981.

In a nationally televised interview on Sunday, the President conceded that his administration is not making satisfactory progress toward attainment of its economic goals.

Bolling, the committee's chairman, said the congressional staff study does not necessarily reflect the views of the Senate-House panel itself.

In another development, the government reported Monday that the nation's industrial output rose at a slower pace last month, confirming forecasts of a slight slowdown in economic growth.

The July increase, at one-half of 1 per cent, was down from the rise of seven-tenths of a per cent in June and nine-tenths of a per cent in May. If stretched out over an entire year, however, the July increase would amount to 6 per cent, a relatively healthy growth rate.

The pessimistic Joint Economic Committee report was based on an analysis of the administration's three major goals: reducing the unemployment rate, which has been ranging around 7 per cent, to 4.75 per cent; slowing inflation, now at about 6 per cent, to 4.3 per cent, and matching revenues and spending so as to balance the budget.

The researchers' simulations, they reported, "illustrate the awkward position the administration has gotten itself into by promising a combination of economic targets that are plainly inconsistent."

To reduce inflation to the target rate, the report said, restrictive fiscal and monetary policies would be needed — and these would raise the unemployment rate well above 7 per cent.

"Only pure good luck ... including bumper world food harvests and massive and unexpected increases in energy supplies, would reduce both the inflation and the unemployment rates," the report said.

"That is the only way inflation can be slowed without also slowing real economic growth through restrictive monetary-fiscal policies, or without introducing a yet-to-be-invented anti-inflation program that does not need to rely on demand restriction."

Even with good luck, the report continued, the Federal Reserve would have to agree to a rate of growth in the money supply that would be high by historic standards.

Meanwhile, the report on industrial output may have discouraged the administration, which has been predicting a 5 per cent increase in the Gross National Product in the final months of the year after a 7 per cent annual growth rate in the first half.

Industrial production is considered an important measure of economic growth because it covers one-third of the economy and is more tangible than such other indicators as sales and earnings.

The biggest increase in July was in consumer durable goods, which were up 1.6 per cent, reflecting a large increase in automotive products and a more moderate rise in home goods.

Insanity plea for Berkowitz if case is brought to trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawyers for David Berkowitz entered a plea of innocent at his arraignment today on charges of murder and assault in the Son of Sam killing case. They said he would plead innocent by reason of insanity if he is brought to trial.

After the brief proceeding before State Supreme Court Justice Leonard Yoswein in Brooklyn, Berkowitz, 24, was remanded to Kings County Hospital. There he will continue the psychiatric examinations that will determine whether he is mentally capable of standing trial.

Berkowitz, his hands manacled in front of him, wore blue jeans, a blue and white pin-striped shirt with a white T-shirt underneath. He was clean-shaven and appeared alert but displayed no emotion.

The innocent plea was entered by lawyer Mark H. Heller, an associate of attorney Leon Stern who was retained by Berkowitz' father.

The arraignment was on charges stemming from the July 31 slaying of Stacy Moskowitz and the wounding of her date, Robert Violante. They were the last victims of the man police call the .44-caliber killer, who killed six young persons and wounded seven during little more than a year.

Yoswein also took up an application by attorney Philip Peltz to withdraw from the case as one of Berkowitz' attorneys. The judge said he would hold a hearing on the matter three to five days after getting the psychiatric report on Berkowitz.

But he ordered tapes of conversations reportedly made by Peltz with Berkowitz to be turned over to the court clerk and sealed. Peltz had reportedly tried to sell copies of the tapes to two newspapers.

Berkowitz was brought to Brooklyn Criminal Court under heavy guard.

"This is the most protection I have ever seen a prisoner get in the 20 years I've worked in the building," one court officer said.

The caravan that brought him included a Correction Department van that was accompanied by three marked and four unmarked police cars. Several shotguns could be seen on the laps of officers as they pulled into the courthouse garage. A police helicopter flew overhead.

An estimated 40 uniformed policemen ringed the courthouse, and an equally large number of court officers were in the building.

Berkowitz was charged in the grand jury indictment Monday with murder, attempted murder, felonious assault and illegal possession of the .44-caliber Charter Arms Bulldog revolver that ballistics expert say was responsible for all the shootings.

Meanwhile published reports said that police had uncovered a diary detailing the acts of Son of Sam, including a previously undisclosed 14th victim.

Court documents showed that Berkowitz said after his arrest that he was responsible for wounding an elderly Yonkers woman with a .45-caliber rifle found in his apartment. New York City police said a search was under way to identify the woman. Police in Yonkers, where Berkowitz lived, refused to discuss the matter.

Police also said they were still following up a report that Berkowitz, accompanied by another man, had visited a Westchester dog kennel the day of his arrest. But a kennel employee said police were uncertain whether Berkowitz was actually the man he spoke to.

"An exacting, 40-page handwritten record" of the killer's eight attacks was found in Berkowitz' apartment, said unidentified police sources quoted in today's New York Daily News.

Letters Berkowitz wrote to his high school sweetheart while he was in the Army were obtained by two newspapers here, the Daily News and the New York Post.

Berkowitz wrote of love and death and religion and talked of dope, guns and bad dreams in letters sent from various Army posts between 1971 and 1973 to Iris Gerhardt.

Once he wrote that "I despise religion, hate prejudice greed, etc. That's all the world is. A cold mass of hell." But other times, Berkowitz wrote, "I have much hope and faith in God and Peace ... I have finally made a conclusion. That is, God is real."

Gov. Rhodes struck in face with pie

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes was struck in the side of the face with a cream pie today after demonstrators chanting "Remember Kent State!" disrupted opening ceremonies at the 124th Ohio State Fair.

The 67-year-old governor, whose glasses were knocked loose, later complained of pain in his right eye and said he would seek medical treatment, according to an aide.

"He (Rhodes) didn't want to say anything, but he told me the eye hurt and he was going to see a doctor," said James Duerk, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Seven persons were arrested, including Steven E. Conliff, 27, of Columbus, who was charged with misdemeanor assault and with disturbing a lawful meeting, police said.

The governor had opened the 124th state fair shortly after 6 a.m. amid chants from the band of protesters opposed to building a $6 million gymnasium annex near the site where four students were killed by Ohio National Guardsmen during an antiwar protest on May 4, 1970.

Rhodes, as governor at the time, was the one who ordered the guardsmen onto the campus. He has stayed out of gym controversy.

As Rhodes proclaimed, "the fair is officially open" and was about to receive a presentation from the Ohio Apple Growers Association, about 20 protesters chimed in, "Move the gym, remember Kent State!"

Rhodes pointed to the director of the All-Ohio State Fair Youth Choir and soon the cries were drowned out by the strains of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The chant was repeated five times before the demonstrators were shoved outside the gates by a group of highway patrolmen. But under cover of the early morning darkness, some of the protesters slipped back in just before the pie was thrown.

Immediately after the attack, the governor went to his private trailer to clean up. He reappeared for a cabinet breakfast at the fairgrounds wearing the same beige suit and shirt and tie.

Rhodes did not comment on the demonstration or the pie throwing, but his executive assistant, Thomas Moyer, said "somebody better be charged. That was assault."

Chinese unveil Mao's mausoleum in Peking

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The Chinese got their first look today at the white marble mausoleum where the embalmed body of Chairman Mao Tse-tung will rest on display in a crystal sarcophagus, the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Peking.

Tanjung said a wooden cover was removed Monday night from the memorial hall on Tien An Men Square in the heart of the Chinese capital. Construction on the memorial began last November and was reported completed in March.

Mao died last Sept. 9 at the age of 82.

Tanjung said official opening of the mausoleum is scheduled for the first anniversary of Mao's death, but that the first visitors to the structure might be participants at the 11th congress of the Chinese party. Tanjug reported the congress has been under way for a week, although there has been no official word from China.

An official announcement last October said that Mao's body would be placed in the hall "upon completion," but Tanjug did not report when the body actually would be put there.

The agency said the mausoleum's architecture contains traditional Chinese elements, but is modern in appearance. The building is surrounded by sculptures and gardens. In gold characters at the entrance is the inscription: Memorial Hall of Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The hall, which Tanjug said is larger than Lenin's mausoleum in Moscow, also will contain a small museum. Marble for the memorial is reported to have come from a quarry near Peking.

ANCIENT CEMETERY UNCOVERED

A skeleton estimated to be almost 4,000 years old has been uncovered near Darmstadt, West Germany, in what archaeologists say was a nearly complete cemetery with hundreds of tombs from the stone age. Tombstones, stone cups, tools and other objects were found in an excellent stage of preservation due to the high chalk content in the soil.

On 'threshold of afterlife,' says Pope

A foreshadowing of death?

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope Paul VI, his voice vibrating with emotion, departed from a prepared text and told a congregation here that in his 80th year, "I see the threshold of afterlife is approaching."

The Pope said Mass on Monday, the Roman Catholic feast of the Assumption, before 2,000 persons gathered in a small church at Castel Gandolfo, his summer residence.

He was reading the text of a homily when he said extemporaneously in Italian: "We would like to make an appointment with you to observe this feast with you next year. Who knows whether I can make this appointment, old as I am. That God help me to do so."

"But I already see the threshold of afterlife is approaching," the Pope continued. "And it is for this reason that I find the occasion of this happy gathering to salute you all and to bless you, your families, your homes and your hopes."

The pontiff suffers from a painful disease of the joints that sometimes limits his activity, but Vatican officials said he looked tanned and rested Monday after a stay of nearly one month at this resort in the Alban Hills, 15 miles south of Rome.

Pope Paul, who will be 80 on Sept. 26, was driven from his residence to the church of the Madonna of the Lake, just over a mile away, for the Mass. Afterward, he made his usual holiday address to the crowd convened to receive his blessing.

PRESIDENT'S PRESENT — Mrs. Lillian Carter shows a crystal ball she received from her son, President Jimmy Carter, Monday in Atlanta on her 79th birthday. She got the present and a phone call from President Carter and a cake from a busload of friends from Plains. She was in Atlanta to autograph her new book.

New York-to-London flights

Airlines okay rates

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Six airlines have agreed on new off-season fares between New York and London of $146 one way and $256 round trip to compete with Freddie Laker's Skytrain shuttle.

The train for tickets bought in London would be 64 pounds (currently $111) and 149 pounds ($259) because varying tariffs and fluctuating exchange rates make tickets for the east-bound flight more expensive.

The rates are to be effective between Sept. 15 and March 31, with a total of 2,900 seats available each week in each direction aboard planes of Trans World Airlines and Pan American, which originated the plan; British Airways, Air India, Iran Air and El Al. They are the members of the International Air Transport Association (IATA) that fly between New York and London.

Laker, an independent British operator who is not a member of IATA, plans to start one flight a day each way between Britain and the United States in September. He is to charge $236 for the round trip, $135 for the New York-to-London flight and about $111 for the London-to-New York leg.

Charters and package deals now provide the cheapest New York-to-London fares of about $250 to $300 roundtrip.

IATA also announced agreement on lower advance purchase excursion, or APEX, fares between several U.S. and European cities from Oct. 1 to March 31, 1978.

Jaworski sees tough job ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, proclaiming that thoroughness will take precedence over haste, is beginning his investigation of alleged South Korean influence-buying in Congress.

But Jaworski, the veteran Texas lawyer who headed the government's Watergate investigation at the time prosecutors began zeroing in on then-President Richard Nixon, says he is troubled by certain aspects of the case.

"I have a feeling it's not going to be a simple task," said Jaworski, pausing for a chat with reporters at the Capitol on Monday before beginning his first day of work. "And this jumping to conclusions really bothers me."

He warned that indulging in speculation creates an impression "that this is a holocaust of some kind," when the probe may show that "there has been wrongdoing perchance but that it's not as widespread as had been originally thought."

Jaworski, who took over as chief investigator for the House ethics committee with assurances of independence, said he did not want Congress, congressmen or other government institutions labeled "untrustworthy until we know what the facts are." He is presiding over the House's investigation of motives behind gifts, favors and cash contributions South Koreans allegedly have given congressmen.

Jaworski sidestepped a question about reports last week that Rep. John J. Flynt, D-Ga., chairman of the ethics committee, attempted on his own to get Korean rice dealer Tongson Park's testimony. Jaworski said he didn't know the facts. Flynt has denied having knowledge of any attempts by staff members to contact Park, who is in London.

Park, a key figure in the investigation, fled from the United States last year shortly after the first reports of alleged influence-buying.

Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell has ordered the Justice Department's Criminal Division to step up efforts to seek Park's return to the United States for questioning.

Park distributed at least $12,000 in cash for campaign and office fund contributions to seven congressmen, gave a $10,000 cash gift to a former congressman's wife and hosted parties and dinners at his fashionable George Town Club for dozens of congressmen.

Wine award

The Claremont Les Amis du Vin wine Society, the local chapter of the nation's consumer organization, has been awarded the highest award of Les Amis du Vin — the Order of Merit with Excellence.

Ron Fonte, the executive director and editor of the wine education group, said that "Claremont has been chosen, from among our 200 chapters in 39 states, for our highest honor because of its imaginative wine-tasting events of the previous year, and its devoted adherence to the Les Amis du Vin philosophy."

Les Amis du Vin, founded in 1965 by a Frenchman, Robert Gourdin, is dedicated to the belief that wine should be taken from the pedestal of adoration and high prices, and placed on the dinner table.

Trip to Bracket Field

The La Verne Recreation Department will sponsor a senior citizens trip to Bracket Field in La Verne Wednesday from 9:15 to 11:30 a.m.

Visitors may view the private aircraft, service operations and the airport terminal building. The cost is 50 cents per person. Vehicles will pick up senior citizens at Hillcrest East, Hillcrest West, the old Alpha Beta parking lot, and the park at Third and D streets.

For more information, persons may phone the city recreation office at 593-4571.

Volunteers trained

New suicide and Crisis Intervention Services volunteers will be graduated from 12 weeks of training Wednesday with a pizza party at a Claremont restaurant.

The party will follow a brief business session at 7:30 p.m. at the Schuman Psychological Center, Upland.

The 15 new volunteers, who started operating the suicide and crisis telephone line this month, have received instruction on how to handle emergency calls.

They heard speakers on drug abuse, alcoholism and problems of the gay community. Other speakers outlined services available at the West End Family Counseling Service and the Family Crisis Counseling Center. Volunteers have observed first-hand the activities at Reach Out West End.

J.T. NANCE JR. has been named manager in the Pomona district office for The National Life and Accident Insurance Co.

He had been serving as a staff manager in the Pomona office, located at 4771 E. Holt Blvd. It has 19 representatives.

Nance began his National Life career as an agent in 1954 in the Detroit office. In 1973, he transferred as a staff manager to the Pomona district.

Five Ontario postal employees have received Superior Accomplishment awards Tuesday, Aug. 9, for their outstanding efforts and job performances, said Ontario Postmaster Charles F. Linck Jr.

"These awards are made periodically, not more than three times a year, to recognize postal employees who have consistently performed their duties in an above average manner," Linck stated.

The employees are EDWARD GRIESER, KERMIT LEACH, RAYMOND CARDON, ERMA MORGAN AND JOE DILKS.

ROBERT M. MANN has been promoted to manager of the Kansas City office of ITT Industrial Credit Co. He had served as credit manager for the company's Southern California region at Los Angeles.

Mann was awarded an associate degree in business from Mt. San Antonio College. He and his wife, Gloria, will complete their move to the Midwest late this summer.

ITT Industrial Credit Co., a financial service of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., provides financing and leasing services to business and industry from 24 offices throughout the United States.

DONALD HEUBSCH, of Pomona, has recently completed a three-week technical training course for Peace Corps volunteer trainees at Tulane University School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine in New Orleans.

He was one of 14 volunteers trained at the university as a health educator or sanitation promoter and will be working in El Salvador, Central America.

While at Tulane, the volunteers received training in dealing with tropical health problems and in organizing hygiene, nutrition and other health education and sanitation problems.

Joyce Brothers

Women in business

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 19-year-old college junior and I look forward to success in business. My father died three years ago, and while he never pressed me, I know he'd be pleased that I'm choosing his line of work. My mother is ultra-passive. If I'm like her I'll end up being pushed into a back office just as thousands of women have been over the years. My mother can't understand my ambition and it's a constant source of conflict though we love and respect each other. Am I wrong to think her attitudes won't work? — R.P.

DEAR R.P.: I'm not sure just what her attitudes are, but if she's afraid of taking risks, and is too concerned with being liked by everyone, then I think you're probably right in assuming that this is not the route to the top.

Set your goals, consider what you want and when you want it. Acquire the technical or specialized training you will need.

You're fortunate to have had your father's encouragement for he may have already given you much of the preparation you need in what is still largely a man's world.

Be ready and willing to take risks and don't be afraid of temporary setbacks as long as you feel you're moving in the right direction.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I just don't understand why our eldest son is such a coward. Neither my husband nor I have any unusual fears and neither have any of our daughters. Our son is intelligent but he is so shy that he's afraid to make decisions. This hesitancy drives his father crazy and he can hardly resist poking fun at him. I try to keep peace by telling my husband that our son will grow out of these fears and become more manly and less shy. Secretly, I'm beginning to wonder. Is there anything we can do to help? — C.K.

Dear C.K.: Yes. The first thing you can do is try to understand your child's fears. You can reassure him by telling him that a certain amount of fear is normal, that it can help to avoid danger and keep us alive. Unrealistic fears can be overcome. Your son doesn't have to spend his life being afraid of things and situations that are harmless.

The person who is afraid has to learn how to take risks. You can help your son if you encourage him to take risks in situations where he can experience a sense of victory over his fear. This will give him the confidence he needs.

Perhaps your son

Chino woman honored

Mrs. Iva Jane Arms was recently honored on her 84th birthday at a dinner given by her daughters, Mrs. Ina Rodman and Mrs. Arnetta Giles.

The celebration was held in the home of Mrs. Giles in Chino where Mrs. Arms has resided since moving to California 20 years ago from Albuquerque, N.M.

She is a member of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and an active member and past noble grand of Valley Queen Rebekah Lodge.

Mrs. Arms has raised nine children.

Among the many friends and relatives who attended the event were several from out of town. They included her son, Billy Cochran and grandson, Timothy, of Houston, Tex.; a son, Howard Arms, Mrs. Charlotte Anne Schillings, Sidney Hilliard and Birdie Hess of Sweet Home, Ore.

Entertainment was provided by another granddaughter, Arnetta Jane Allison, on the accordion, and piano duets by Mrs. Veran M. Burbank and Mrs. Ruth Polling.

That fashionable suit or dress you take for granted may be a technological achievement of sorts in this era of new fabrics. In fact, taming lapels or sleeve cuffs to get a smooth, quality look takes a good deal of knowhow.

A lot of missing links are pieced together by expert Rose Russo and her group of 12 at a research center that assists manufacturers in using fusible, nonwoven interfacings in construction of garments to control shape and provide better fit.

A great many interfacings may be tested until one unites properly with the fabric.

Mrs. Russo was recently named director of the 12-year-old apparel research and development center established by Pellon, which she had joined at its inception. The company has been an innovator in nonwoven textiles for 25 years.

"These days fewer skilled operators are available in garment manufacture at a time when some new fabrics, such as stretchy ones, are difficult to handle. Fusing helps provide a better garment and a tailored look," she explained.

"For example, many things must be controlled — the rolling of lapels, puckering or bubbling, shrinkage, or nap problems such as those presented by velvets and corduroys, which require different fusing methods," says Mrs. Russo. Her mother was a seamstress and her father was a tailor, which reinforces her professional wisdom.

New fusibles are developed in their company laboratory at Lowell, Mass., and the tests are made at the center. One of the newest of hundreds is one that can maintain seethrough quality, developed to suit the sheer fabrics now being used in blouses and dresses, she points out.

Technology gives fashion boost

It's a soft, sheer, mottled kind of nonwoven that blends right into the fabric.

Fusing is being used by manufacturers and designers of garments ranging from $5 to $500, said Mrs. Russo, who had just returned from California, where she spoke at a seminar of 250 manufacturers.

"We recommend how interfacing should be cut for a particular fabric, how grain lines should be used, how to put a garment together, the proper tension of the thread that should be used," she said. "Some fabrics might be stretchy, some might buckle."

A graduate of the Fashion Institute of Technology and a former pattern maker for McCalls, Mrs. Russo may even find that the pattern itself is at the root of a manufacturer's problem.

Twenty professional dry cleanings and rigorous tests in the washing machine may be needed to determine whether a piece of fabric gets a seal of approval.

The research center has seven fusing machines, and a manufacturer may need help in choosing the proper machine for a particular garment, Mrs. Russo says. Instructions are offered in setting a machine to get a proper bond and on the time and pressure that may be required to fuse a garment.

Facial Neuritis May Bring Painful Jitters

Often a Chiropractic patient will seek treatment for one problem and will be amazed to discover they have obtained relief from another problem as well.

As an example, Dr. H.L. Fisher, D.C., of the Fisher

Chiropractic Offices, cited the case of a slight pain over one eye while visiting her Doctor of Chiropractic for a regularly scheduled Dr. H.L. Fisher D.C.

After thoroughly examining her, the Doctor commenced treatment and asked her to return the next day. When she arrived for her second treatment, she exclaimed, "I don't know what you did, but I'm completely relaxed now . . . not jittery and nervous . . . and the pain is gone!"

"Frankly, such a dramatic change in temperament and attitude is easily understandable once we look at the lady's problem," explains Dr. Fisher.

The trouble was a low grade irritation of the trigeminal nerve, the nerve which is usually the culprit in facial neuritis.

"Upon examining the patient, the Doctor may find abnormally tender points on all three branches of the trigeminal nerve, two of which the patient is unaware until they are located. On the third, that which is connected to the nerve above the eye, the irritation can be severe enough to make the patient aware of the pain."

Dr. Fisher further explained that the dramatic change from pain and nervousness to a normal life is more likely to happen if the patient acts as soon as the pain appears. Procrastination is good health's worst enemy.

"All too often, a person will ignore minor, recurring pains or just take a pain pill and try to forget about it," the good Doctor cautions. "But until the cause is found and eliminated, the pain and irritability will return again and again."

Note: Dr. Fisher maintains Chiropractic offices at 601 S. Oaks, Ontario, Calif. Phone 983-0766.

Bartenders Pentathlon scheduled Wednesday

By CONRAD CASLET
PB Staff Writer

The first Pomona Valley-West End Bartenders Grudge Pentathlon will be staged here Wednesday.

Pitting the skills of eight bartenders, the contest has been described as "dynamic and stimulating as a soggy bar rag."

Replete with cheerleaders and a wheezy limousine to transport the athletes, the contest will start at 8:30 a.m. with nine holes of golf at the Claremont Golf Course, move (by wheezy limousine) to Brophy's Tavern in Montclair at midmorning for darts, pool and ping pong, the wind up for the climax of bowling at the nearby Bowlum.

The pentathlon is the brainchild of Fred Ireton and Travis Green, friendly co-bartenders at Claremont's Ruddy Duck and unfriendly twosome on the golf links.

"I've beaten Travis at golf since either of us can remember," said Ireton. "But the last four games we played, he beat me. So, I decided to show him once and for all I was a better all-around athlete than he was and set up the challenge. Others heard of the match and wanted in. So we decided to stage a pentathlon."

Contestant Loren Henthorn of the Canopy Lounge in Ontario said everyone knows bartenders are the world's best athletes. "Besides they have to have dexterity, coordination, stamina and a great knowledge of psychology."

"And we must be cute," offered John Brophy, contestant and owner of Brophy's Tavern and the wheezy limousine.

Ireton said he was confident he would at least take top ping pong honors. "The only person ever to beat me was a lady wrestler," he said.

Other contestants are Jack Witham and Ted Garner of the Ruddy Duck, Bob Small of La Puente's Straw Hat Pizzeria, and Greg Wood of Griswold's in Claremont.

Ireton wondered if the victory banquet should be staged at the Ruddy Duck or the hospital's intensive care unit. "We'll just have to see which place has the biggest crowd," he quipped.

Boys' Club will conduct a carnival

The West End Boys' Clubs will conduct a four-day, fund-raising carnival Aug. 25-28 at Archibald Avenue and Base Line Road in Cucamonga.

This is the organization's major event to raise funds for youth character-building programs for hundreds of boys.

Hours will be from 5 p.m. to midnight Aug. 25-26; 10 a.m. to midnight Aug. 27; and noon to midnight Aug. 28.

According to Tom Neyman, executive director of the West End Boys' Clubs, the Christiansen Carnival will provide major rides and a variety of game booths.

Food and drink booths will be operated by the Alta Loma-Cucamonga Kiwanis, Boy Scouts, Cucamonga Lions and Miss Softball America.

Discount ticket books are available from club members and participating organizations for $1.

A bicycle will be given away at the carnival at 8 p.m. Aug. 28. The winner must be present.

Diamond Bar residents hear about crime patrol

Diamond Bar residents have expressed their concern over what they view as increasing crime in the community to representatives of the Los Angeles County Industry sheriff's substation.

At a recent meeting of the Diamond Bar Municipal Advisory Committee, residents heard representatives of the sheriff's office explain what the industry station is doing to increase patrol in Diamond Bar.

Sgt. Jim Gardner told residents that patrol in the community has increased from a half car — that is, a car shared with another nearby community — to two overlapping patrol cars, both with two deputies, during the noon-to-midnight shifts.

Gardner also told residents and businessmen that the sheriff's office would by appointment conduct a security check of every business in Diamond Bar, offering advice on how businesses can be made less susceptible to robberies and burglaries.

Gardner fielded questions concerning response time and other aspects of law enforcement in Diamond Bar.

Residents questioning the sheriff's deputies' performance in a recent loud party breakup, were told that the deputies had made eight arrests and confiscated weapons from persons involved in a party-crashing episode on Mountain Laurel Avenue in Diamond Bar recently.

In excess of 100 persons were said to have been attending the party which reportedly ended in shots being exchanged between those present. The owner of the home had summoned deputies who met the owner several blocks from the residence and subsequently made the arrests.

Rich Little doing Rich Little

LITTLE REMAINS — Impressionist Rich Little has won fame copying the voices and mannerisms of celebrities. Now that he is a star, he's putting more of Rich Little into the act.

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Impressionist Rich Little achieved fame by copying voices and mannerisms of more than 160 movie stars, political figures and other celebrities. Now he's doing more Rich Little.

Little has gradually interjected more of himself into his acts in recent years, sandwiched in between humorous impressions of actors like John Wayne, Humphrey Bogart and James Stewart, and political figures such as Richard Nixon and Jimmy Carter.

In an interview here, Little said his ambition is "to do what I'm doing right now — except maybe some more dramatic things, some more Rich Little, do more acting."

Little, a Canadian, launched his U.S. career with a television spot in 1964. Early in his career, "I used to do solid impressions, but people didn't know who I was. They wouldn't recognize my own voice," he says. "I realized I had to change," he said adding that there's a "likeability factor" an entertainer achieves with an audience which allows more leeway in a show.

Now Little jokes, sings, ad libs, breaks out of character, and generally "I make it more of a show. I just didn't want to stand there with a monologue. You don't headline that way."

The system has worked. Little now has a 30-week yearly schedule of appearances in major clubs, hotels and theaters around the country, as well as a steady round of television appearances. He writes most of his own material and masters not only voices but facial expressions and physical movements.

Even though more Rich Little shows up in his act, Little, 38, plans to continue doing impressions as he has since he was 14 and mimicking his school teachers in Ottawa.

Little says he was told by other entertainers that "no one ever made it big doing impressions and that it was time to move on. Move on to what? Dancing?"

Audiences enjoy seeing portrayals of "people who are supposed to be very intelligent, in high places, saying silly things," he says.

For example, in his Jimmy Carter routine, Little smiles from ear to ear and talks in a deep Southern drawl about solar energy: An exploratory trip to the sun is in the offing and so that astronauts aren't burned up "We're going at night!"

Little, as Nixon, alternately grins and scowls, shakes his jowls, waves his arms in the air and rails about Watergate. Even with Nixon out of office, Little figures the routine will remain a "gem" because "he's always in the news. As long as he is on peoples' minds, he is a good subject."

And audiences always like humorous or nostalgic impressions of actors and singers like Wayne, Clark Gable, Anthony Newley or Johnny Cash, he says. But it's getting tougher to mimic many new stars who don't have distinctive voices or the "larger than life" quality of stars of the 1940s and 1950s, he adds.

Little says the art of doing impressions has been around for a long time. He's certain some court jester was "doing a devastating Merlin" during King Arthur's time in early England, and there's no sign yet that audiences are tiring of such acts.

NEH to offer new TV series

The National Endowment for the Humanities, which funded such TV successes as "The Adams Chronicles," "The American Short Story" and "Hard Times," will sponsor a new documentary series, "In Pursuit of Liberty."

The first of the four new TV documentaries, which was produced by WNET-13 in New York, will be distributed to PBS stations on Monday evenings at 10 beginning Labor Day.

In keeping with the series title, the documentaries lead the audience through a dramatic presentation of four fundamental civil and personal liberties assumed by all Americans: work; freedom of thought; privacy; and freedom of the press. The thrust of the series is to look with new perspectives at the evolution of liberties, the dangers which threaten them, and the ways each one may conflict with other, equally important freedoms.

Cal Poly plans three concerts

Four musical groups will perform on Cal Poly's Twilight Concert Series in the concert bowl this week.

The Claude Alexander Quarter will give a concert at 7 p.m. Thursday. Jasmine will appear Friday, and the Frizz Fuller Revue and the Iron Mountain String Band will play on Saturday.

The quarter offers improvised music in the traditional jazz format of the '40s and '50s. Two tenor saxophones, a bass and drums are featured.

Jasmine, a five-member group, recently made its debut at one of the Troubadour's weekly "hoot-night" showcases for new talent. "The band received such an impressive audience response that the management booked them the following week as headliners, and they drew a capacity crowd," according to Bob Taylor of The Free Press. The original material encompasses a fusion of progressive jazz, rock, Latin and soul influences.

Fuller, who opens Saturday's concert, has appeared at colleges, bars and clubs, including the Troubadour and the Mt. Baldy Lodge. The Iron Mountain String Band is an old time Southern Mountain style band which recreates the music of southwestern Virginia. The band plays traditional Anglo-American ballads, songs both tragic and humorous, and a variety of lively dance tunes and "break-downs." The band, formed in 1961 in New York City, has a clawhammer-style banjo picker, Virginia mountain-style fiddler and an old-time "walking bass" guitar player. Its albums are "The Iron Mt. String Band" and "Walkin' in the Parlor," on Folkways label. The band takes its name from a long, wooded ridge in Grayson County, Virginia, where it often camped while recording in the area.

Tickets are $1.50 for the Thursday and Friday night concerts and $1.75 for the Saturday concert. Children under 12 are admitted free. Everyone is invited to bring a picnic dinner and blanket.

Upland man Shot from passing car

A 28-year-old Upland man was in surgery Monday morning at San Bernardino County Hospital after being shot by someone in a passing car in the 400 block of East Sunkist Street late Sunday night, Ontario police reported.

The victim, according to police reports, was standing with a group of other men in the area about 10:45 p.m. Sunday when shots were fired.

Police said the victim was then transported by several other men driving a dark van to Ontario Community Hospital where he was given emergency first aid treatment and then transferred to the county hospital.

2 arrested after shot fired into apartment

Pomona police officers arrested two men early Sunday after someone shot into an apartment building in the 200 block of West Grove Avenue.

Arrested and booked at Pomona city jail at 5:30 a.m. Sunday were Anthony Bruce Sarpy, 19, of 2467 Lennox Ave., and Herbert Ronald Bowden, 24, of 661 McKinley Ave., both of Pomona.

Officers stopped a car containing Sarpy and Bowden on Dawnview Avenue, north of Grove Avenue. They reported finding in the vehicle a .22 caliber rifle, and in Bowden's pants pockets several bullets.

The former Julene Convalescent Hospital, 1550 N. Park Ave., Pomona, has changed ownership and name.

North American Health Care, Inc., the new owner, has changed the name of the center to Park Place Convalescent Hospital.

The new administrator, Ned Miller, said "The philosophy of the new management is a total emphasis on improving patient care through the upgrading of the facility and the raising of standards of the staff through training."

The hospital welcomes visits by the public.

Despite opposition from homeowners

Apartment house in Pomona approved

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

An apartment house opposed by homeowners in Pomona and Claremont was approved Monday night by the Pomona City Council.

Despite the protests of homeowners the council voted 3-2 to approve a zone change which will allow construction of an apartment house on Summer Avenue just behind the new Bob's Big Boy Restaurant on Foothill Boulevard.

"I drove around the area today and, frankly, I can't see putting anything else in there," said Councilwoman Georgia Grove, who casts the deciding vote.

A week ago, with Mrs. Grove absent, the council had split evenly, 2-2, on the same question.

Mayor Charles Bader, who along with Councilman Benjamin Ochoa also voted to approve the zone change, said the apartment house as proposed is the best that can be hoped for in such a situation.

"Time and again I've seen this city vote against a development and eventually end up with something of lesser quality," he said.

Bader predicted that if the apartment house project were turned down, development of the 1.87-acre site would wind up as "cheap" single family housing or some commercial development that would be worse for the existing neighborhoods than the apartment complex.

Homeowners did not agree, however.

One, Mary Parsons, told the council that she would favor commercial development rather than the proposed apartment building.

"We're proud to live there. We take great pride in the neighborhood. An apartment house would degrade the whole area," she said.

Basically the homeowners fear that the apartment complex will bring congestion, lowered property values and potential crime to the neighborhood.

They suggested that condominiums would be preferable to apartments because the owners of condominiums would "have pride of ownership."

The developer, Frank T. Howard, said he had considered building condominiums, but that the site didn't seem suitable for that use.

The council's only concession to the homeowners came at the urging of Mrs. Grove when she suggested the project be reduced from 36 units to 32 units.

Howard said he believed the project would still be feasible with a reduction of that kind.

In other business Monday night the council approved the use of $86,000 in gas tax funds for reconstruction of a street on what is now the Pomona Mall between Garey Avenue and Locust Street.

Development of the street, and the opening of Locust Street to through traffic across what is now the mall, is part of the Pomona Chamber of Commerce's plan for rejuvenating the area.

At present the old Owl Drug Store at Garey and the mall is being torn down and will be replaced with a parking lot. That work is being financed by the chamber.

The council voted unanimously to develop the street, although Ochoa fought to have a second block of the mall torn out as well.

He argued that a better traffic circulation flow could be developed by building the street all the way to Gibbs Street.

L.V. council gives the final OK on tax cut

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The La Verne City Council has given final approval to a tax reduction of nearly one cent for the fiscal year that began last July 1.

The new tax rate is $2.4047 per $100 of assessed valuation compared with $2.4137 last year.

The cut is made possible by a 20 per cent increase in the city's assessed valuation, which, according to City Manager George Caswell, now stands at more than $52 million.

The additional assessed valuation will enable the city to balance a $5 million budget that is $1 million higher than that of last year.

Caswell said the budget includes an amount that is necessary to give city employees a raise.

What that amount is only Caswell and the council know. Negotiations with employee groups are still under way, but according to the city manager, the council will not exceed the amount that has been set aside in the budget.

The council also approved a request to pre-annex a 360-acre parcel of property that will eventually bring into the city 720 new homes.

The parcel is located north of Base Line Avenue and east of Wheeler Avenue and is to be subdivided by the Hughes Development Co.

The council approved a request to rezone the territory from agricultural to residential with two homes to the acre.

In other matters, the council:

—Gave support to request by the Yellow Cab Co. to raise rates about 18 per cent over the present ones, after owner Gene Stalians claimed the company had lost money the past three years.

—Agreed to a joint financing offer by Caltrans to put a signal light at the intersection of Base Line and Wheeler avenues and to help buy up rights-of-way for the realignment of Base Line Avenue at Foothill.

—Received a report from Caswell that escrow has been opened for the purchase of the Shea building for the new city hall at a cost of $750,000. Caswell said the city staff hopes to move into its new home by mid October.

No shortage of energy now in U.S.—Lloyd

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., told San Bernardino County supervisors Monday there is presently no shortage of energy in the U.S. — but that shortages will reach the "critical" stage by the year 2000.

Lloyd, home on summer recess, appeared before the supervisors with Rep. Shirley Pettis, R-37th Dist., to answer questions concerning federal legislation recently adopted.

The energy crisis and President

Carter's energy bill were the questions most asked, leading Lloyd to discuss some of his opinions on recent energy legislation.

"Congress has asserted itself in the last year," said Lloyd. "I'm pleased with the record we've amassed this year."

He said, however, that he was not totally pleased with Carter's energy bill because it discriminated against the needs of Southern Californians.

"We are stuck with the automobile and the chance for a mass transit system in this area is a very fleeting thing. We (in Southern California) have no other form of transportation," he said.

"I'm not totally pleased with the energy bill. I spoke out against the increased gas tax and other aspects of the bill I thought discriminated against residents in this area," he said.

Lloyd also believes reports the cost of gasoline will skyrocket to at least $1 per gallon in the near future and that natural gas supplies in the country are dwindling.

"I can promise the people in your area . . . we have a shortage," he said.

Lloyd told supervisors, "Right here, right now, there is no shortage of energy, but a critical shortage is anticipated by the year 2000."

Lloyd advocated increased use of nuclear power — saying it was not the "great danger" some people believe it is. "You feel a greater danger on our nation's highways," he said.

Lloyd also advocated increased use and research of solar energy. He urged supervisors to actively consider giving homeowners and builders incentives to use solar energy in their homes.

He also said automobile manufacturers should be encouraged to develop cars with smaller engines to help alleviate the impending energy crisis. He indicated, however, that mandatory regulation was not the answer, but rather "educating" the public on the seriousness of the energy problem is the ultimate solution to the crisis.

On the work in Congress this year, Lloyd said, "We have accomplished more this year than ever before in the history of Congress."

One project he was particularly proud of, he said, was the award of $12 million in federal funds for the construction of a flood control channel in the West End of San Bernardino County along Cucamonga Creek. "This year has been a very favorable year," he said.

Search for Upland Little League field site runs into another snag

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Upland's Little League — seeking to find a new location away from the flight pattern of an airport — has struck out again.

The Upland City Hall was filled beyond capacity Monday night with residents who all voiced approval of the Little League — but opposed the establishment of a field in their neighborhood.

The Upland Senior Little League has, for the past year, been busy constructing a regulation field at Greenbelt Park between 13th and 15th streets east of Benson Avenue.

It was not until Dewey Cable, president of Cable Airport, objected to the installation of 75-foot lightpoles near the landing pattern of the airport, west of the park, that anyone was aware of the potential danger, staff members say.

Two other girls' softball fields, also under construction in the Greenbelt Park, will be moved 200 feet north of the previous location and lowered. There was no objection from residents along 15th Street to this change in location.

The city staff and Little League representatives were considering locating the baseball diamond in the 18th Street Park adjacent to Pioneer Junior High School and, as required by law, notified residents in the area last week.

Roland Zimmerman, a resident near the proposed field expressed the feelings of most of the audience when he said, "We approve of Little League, but we don't want it in our neighborhood."

He was followed to the podium by several other residents who cited devaluation of property, noise pollution, rubbish left by the ball players and audience and crowded parking conditions.

Duane Smith, a Little League board member, said the group has spent more than five years attempting to cooperate with the city in establishing a field in Upland. "We've been playing carrot and rabbit all over this town," said Smith. "Now we have no place to go and a growing youth population seeking to play ball."

He conceded the Pioneer Park location would not be acceptable in view of the neighborhood opposition.

The next location discussed at the Monday meeting to be considered is a site adjacent to Memorial Park on land owned by the city.

Zimmerman said he and others in the Pioneer Park area would offer both labor and finances to the Little League in an attempt to help them get a field ready for play by next spring.

An informal public hearing on the possibility of locating the field near Memorial Park is scheduled on Aug. 24. Residents of a mobile home park and others in the area will be notified by the city of the hearing, City Manager Lee Travers said.

Foothill Fwy. proposal gets an approval

The state apparently continues to play ping-pong with the extension of the Foothill Freeway.

La Verne City Manager George Caswell reported to his City Council this week that the Senate Committee on Transportation has approved extension of the freeway beyond La Verne by a 6-1 margin.

He says the plan now goes to the Senate Finance Committee for inclusion in a six-year plan. That meeting is set for Thursday and Caswell said he will be there to lobby for the inclusion.

But the California Highway Commission has scheduled a meeting for Sept. 15. One of the agenda items is a recommendation to rescind the proposal to extend the freeway east to San Bernardino. Caswell said he will be there to fight that.

"We have to have hope that it will all turn out all right," he told the council. "If we don't, we're lost."

The state, which at one time abandoned extension of the freeway, is taking another look at the plan in view of the unexpected expansion of the valley's population.

Chaffey district report criticized by spokesman for classified employees

A proposal to eliminate 15 non-teaching positions in the Chaffey school district drew critical comments Monday night from a spokesman for the classified workers.

Arthur Young and Co., a Los Angeles consulting firm, recently stated in a report to the school board that the district has 15 more classified (or non-teaching) employees than it needs.

Liz Hicks, president of the local chapter of California School Employees Association (CSEA), voiced serious concerns over the proposal to "eliminate staff." She wondered if the Arthur Young team did a "thorough and objective job" in their report.

Mrs. Hicks cited one case of an employee already victimized by the Arthur Young report, which noted the district was "overstaffed" in certain areas.

The employee, whose name was not disclosed, had been already interviewed for a position and given a work schedule, according to school trustee Ray Sarrio. "But the person (who already works in the district but applied for a transfer to another position) was told he could not have the job because of the Young report."

The report indicated that the district was overstaffed in that particular position, Sarrio explained.

The case was later discussed in executive session, Sarrio noted. No official action was taken but Sarrio voiced concern over the administration putting the Arthur Young study into practice "before we approved it."

Ontario City Council will adjourn meeting

The Ontario City Council meeting is expected to adjourn tonight for lack of a quorum.

City Clerk DeLoris Arterburn reported that most council members are vacationing or out-of-town on business; and the meeting will be adjourned to Aug. 30 at 7 p.m.

Mountain Meadows Redevelopment Project criticized by homeowners

Ganesha Hills homeowners Monday blasted tentative plans for the city's Mountain Meadows Redevelopment Project, labeling the hillside plan nothing but a "run-of-the-mill tract."

Charlene Daniels, spokesman for the Ganesha Hills Homeowners advisory committee, told city officials that the committee members feel present plans will not bring quality development or residents to the project.

"We don't believe a tract development is the answer. 'We don't think this will bring in the type of people you want,'" she said.

Mrs. Daniels and other homeowners urged the city to promote development similar in character to that which already exists in the Ganesha Hills — which would mean individually unique homes built on irregular lots.

Homeowners said the plans drawn thus far by the city's landscape architectural consultant, POD Inc. of Orange County, can lead to nothing but a "tract looking" development because the 100-by-100 foot lots are side-by-side across the hills.

They said it did not matter that the homes might cost $100,000, such a development would not attract the professional and executive home buyer.

Representatives from the architectural firm disagreed, stating that the development pattern on the hills is dictated by the hills themselves.

"There is a severe rock problem, making it impossible to do any significant grading. We don't feel grading would be desirable anyway," said Frank Brower.

He estimated that more than half of the 126 lots envisioned for the site would have a natural hillside slope and that grading would average no more than three feet per lot.

Out of the total 150 acres in the project area, homes would only be constructed on about 50, with the remainder of the terrain left as is except for landscaping "near the developed portion."

Sea law pact founders

The three-mile limit was originally established a few centuries ago, we are told, because it was as far as cannons of the time could fire out to sea.

In other words, international law regarding freedom of the seas was less a matter of agreement by the countries of the world that the oceans were a common highway than it was a measure of their ability to molest each other.

We have since progressed to the point where, in 1970, the United Nations declared the resources on the floor of the sea itself were "the common heritage of mankind."

Yet for the past eight years, 156 countries participating in law of the sea conferences have been unable to reach agreement on putting that noble principle into international law.

At stake are untold billions of dollars worth of manganese nodules — little potato-shaped accretions scattered over the ocean floor at great depths — which also contain nickel, copper and cobalt. Methods have been perfected for scooping up the nodules and refining them.

Four U.S. companies, allied with Japanese, West European and Canadian partners, are eager to get at the nodules, but they want — understandably so — guarantees that their operations will not be confiscated if and when a law of the sea treaty is signed.

A treaty seemed within reach only a few days ago. Other issues in the treaty "package" had been resolved, such as fishing rights, offshore oil exploration, pollution control and the like.

Unfortunately, the seabed minerals issue has foundered on a move by certain Third World countries — some of them land-based producers of the minerals involved — to make undersea mining entirely a U.N. monopoly run by U.N. bureaucrats. They also would limit the growth of mining and possibly require private industry to turn over its mining know-how to the United Nations as a condition for mining rights.

All of which caused normally unflappable Elliot Richardson, American ambassador to the conference, to throw up his hands and suggest that the United States consider withdrawing from the deliberations.

Others are urging that the United States go ahead unilaterally and begin tapping a resource which, it is said, could make the nation self-sufficient in the above-named four vital minerals by the year 2000.

Eight years is long enough to spend trying to reason with the countries of the Third World, many of whom have shown themselves to be as greedy and exploitive as any 19th-century colonial power.

Failing some convincing arguments from the administration as to why yet another try for an agreement should be made at the next law of the sea session in Geneva next March, it would seem to be the time to begin mining the oceans.

All that wining and dining

Jimmy Carter apparently was serious during the 1976 presidential campaign when he promised to do something about tax-deductible, two-martini lunches and other forms of lavish living now treated as "business entertainment" under the Internal Revenue Code.

Carter's treasury secretary, W. Michael Blumenthal, told the Louisville Chamber of Commerce the other day that rules governing expense-account spending are so complicated they're almost impossible to enforce.

He said the administration is taking a critical look at deductions for meals, travel, club dues, theater tickets and other expenses to see whether they really should be considered part of the cost of doing business.

It's a fair question. And it deserves a much fuller hearing in Congress than it's had in the past.

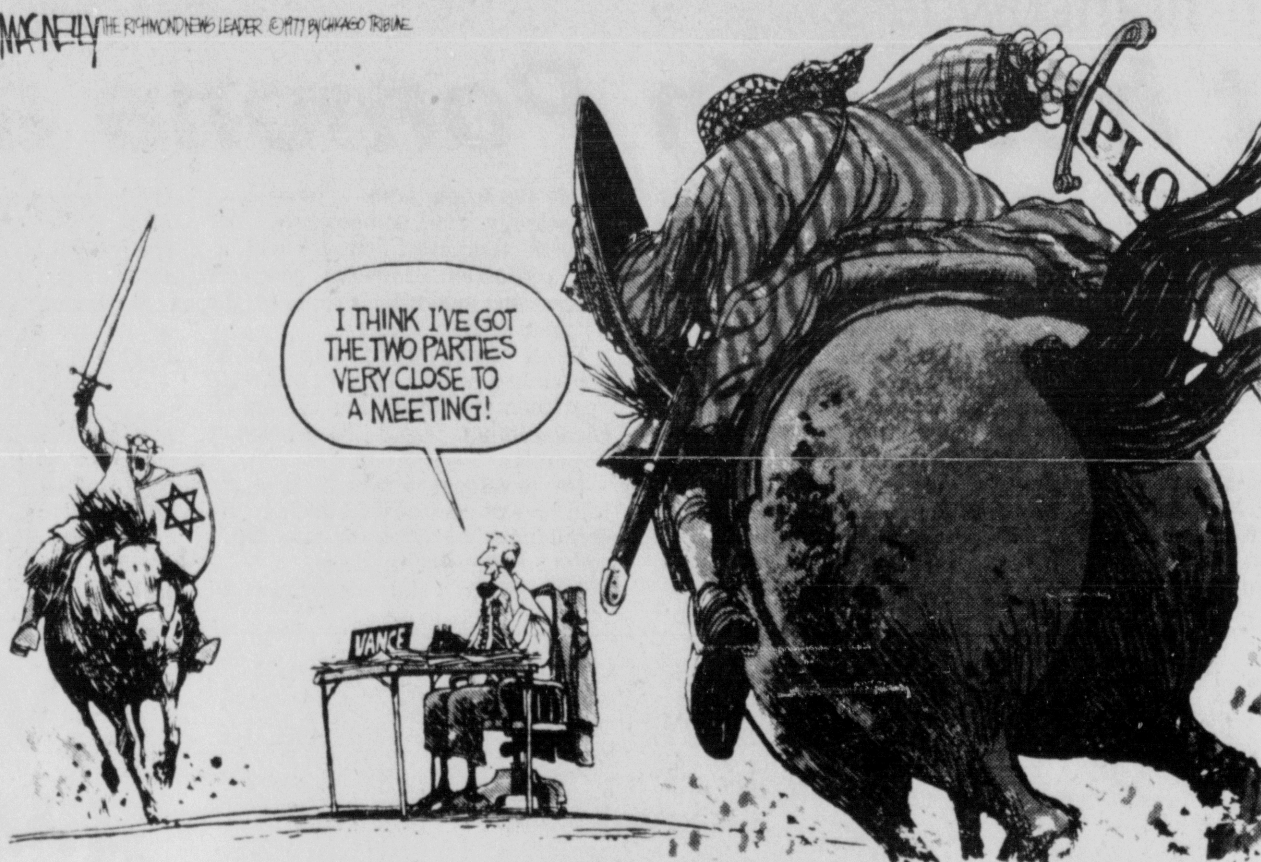

A good many taxpayers, we suspect, are not enraptured with all the tax-deductible wining and dining that goes on in this country. Why can't business be done in the office? And why should companies and individuals be able to entertain each other — at hunting lodges, at football games, at Broadway plays — and then deduct the cost on their income tax returns? Naturally, the tax load they slough off has to be picked up by less privileged citizens.

Carter, of course, is not the first president to challenge expense-account living. President Kennedy did it 15 years ago and ran into a barrage of protest from hotelmen, restaurateurs and travel agents. He ended up with some stricter record-keeping requirements — but not much else.

There is nothing easy about what Carter is trying to do. Tax law is extremely complex. And the President may find that eliminating all dubious deductions is simpler than trying to pick and choose among them.

But it's a problem that needs to be faced unless we're willing to accept the Orwellian idea that all taxpayers are equal but some are more equal than others.

School wastes water

Dear Editor:

With everyone concerned about the water shortage, I would like to know why our schools continue to flood the streets every day with excess water.

I live next door to Margarita Elementary School on Monte Vista in Montclair. Each night the sprinklers come on for at least an hour. I have seen a couple hundred gallons of water flow to the gutter each week.

I would like to suggest that the grass be watered only twice a week. Also, a supervisor should be there to shut off the water before it begins to flood in the streets.

If our city, county and school governments cannot save water, what kind of an example is this for the rest of the citizenry?

Dear Editor:

I am not one who writes letters of this type. That is, until I read the article concerning Charles Chase and his "unsightly logs laying helter skelter in his yard."

Let it be known that I, Gene Wahweah, support Mr. Chase in his battle with Claremont city hall and the not so neighborly neighbors. I believe that if the neighbor causes one's own property to be removed from one's own castle that it would set a precedent for other possible neighborly acts. If you catch my drift, that sort of act would lead to an untold number of consequences on the aggressor and aggressed. Let's catch it and kill it quick.

Justice is rationed

WASHINGTON — It sometimes seems as if half the American people are suing the other half. Our daily mail is loaded with emotional letters, enclosing ponderous legal documents, from litigants who have given up all hope of getting justice from the courts.

We once numbered among our basic rights what was called our "day in court." That phrase meant access to justice on terms that were prompt, cheap and fair. Today, the phrase must be altered to our "years in court." Access to our courts is no longer prompt nor cheap and, therefore, cannot be fair.

In the past 10 years, the workload of most federal courts has doubled; some courts report it has tripled. There has been no comparable increase in the number of judges or other court resources, which means that our judicial system is forced everywhere, every day, to violate the chief judicial commandment formulated by the late, eminent Judge Learned Hand: "Thou shalt not ration justice."

Once the citizen does get into court, he may be stuck there waiting for a conclusion for perhaps a decade. The litigant whose bills are footed by stockholders or by the taxpayers can simply outlast the unsubsidized citizen by dragging things out from court to court. It is but a matter of time before the lone litigant is too broke, too weary, too old and too hopeless to continue. And so he drops out.

Not infrequently, he drops out by dying. The anguish and frustration that builds up on the emotional roller coaster of endless, unresolved litigation is a frequent cause of illness. We quote from a not untypical letter, written by Nicholas Barbaro of Brooklyn:

"My father died of a massive heart attack. I understand that courts are overcrowded, but I firmly believe that his case was worrying him to such a degree that it affected his health, which resulted in his death."

The burden of the clogging of the courts falls unequally. For the congenital criminal, it means that most of the time, under one guise or another, he will get off. The United States is too weak and too poor, at least in its priorities, to cope with its criminals.

For victims of crime, it means more victimization and less hope of redress. There can no longer be any doubt that the failure to dispose of criminal cases promptly is largely responsible for the crime wave sweeping the country.

For the citizen who is caught up in a civil case, or who needs to bring one, he is confronted with the delay that has always been recognized as the denial of justice. He may wait for years to get a hearing.

The lament is the loudest from concerned, conscientious judges. The federal district court for southern Florida once led the nation in processing civil cases. But Judge J. Lawrence King now reports, with dismay, that this court has tried almost no civil cases in the past year.

Judge Robert Ainsworth, chairman of the federal judiciary's Committee on Court Administration, who sits in New Orleans on the Fifth Circuit Court, declares: "There are just too many cases. We're at half strength."

Warns Judge Gerald Haney of the Eighth Circuit Court in Duluth, Minn.: "The sheer paperwork alone is overwhelming."

What has caused the disintegration of our once proud judicial system into such mocking decrepitudes? Some of the reasons reach to the general condition of our society. In a permissive age, more and more people are without a personal moral code and will accept only those strictures forced upon them by the law. And in a free society, the law never has enough resources to deal with a large population of convicts.

But most of the causes of our courtroom breakdown CAN be zeroed in on. The judges themselves are culpable. Though they have labored heroically to keep up with huge caseloads, they have failed as a group to sound the alarm as mounting problems beset their courts. Much of their caseload is made up of repeaters who are convicted but not put away. Judges have also been slow to purge their deadheads, to change antiquated methods and to take advantage of modern technology.

The major beneficiaries of the stagnation of our legal system are the lawyers who, therefore, have happily contributed to the logjam. Paid by the hour for most cases, lawyers have developed into a money-making science the techniques of postponement, of appeal, of moves to different courts, of the everlasting new motion. And too many judges, having once been lawyers themselves, permit this sort of fee fattening.

There is nothing benevolent behind the failure of Congress to add a single federal district judgeship since 1970 to cope with the flood of new cases its laws have generated. Lay that favor to patronage hounding at its coarsest. While Republicans held the White House, the Democrats in Congress weren't willing to create new judicial plums for the president to hand out.

A number of proposals have been made to deal with this breakdown. Here are just a few:

— The creation of enough judges and other court resources to meet the load.

— A recodification of legal procedures aimed at bringing litigation to a final conclusion within a reasonable time.

— The establishment of citizens' courts, run by mere magistrates, where citizens can come without lawyers for quick, cost-free adjudication of modest disputes.

— Putting an end to the exclusive license of lawyers to horn in and profiteer on family-type concerns by establishing procedures for the probating of wills, for the sale of residential real estate, for uncomplicated divorces and the like, without the gouging by our $75-an-hour Clarence Darrows.

Paul Harvey

Happiness a sometimes thing

It is a paradox that some of the most affluent are the least happy.

Periodically, the so-called "experts" try to explain the depression which leads to suicide.

Here is one study which concludes that "most suicides occur in winter."

Here is another which says "Suicides most prevalent in Spring."

Some psychologist theorizes that the per-capita rate of suicide is higher during presidential campaigns.

Another presumes to blame psychological depression on economic recession.

But the theory which appears most valid in most cases was expressed by Dr. Harold Treffert of the Mental Health Institute in Oshkosh, Wis.

I have measured his theory against each day's news for the past two years; it stands up.

He says Americans have been so richly blessed with material things that they are spoiled. He says we have come to believe that we are supposed to be constantly happy.

Around the world, 1,000 people kill themselves every day and 10,000 try. Attempts are increasing, especially among the young.

And the highest suicide rate is in the countries where the standard of living is high — Hungary, Denmark, Finland and the United States.

Freddie Prinz had it all — handsome, healthy and wealthy.

But because he was not constantly happy, he tried to sustain his highs with drugs. The drugs worsened the depression until he put a pistol to his head.

That most drugs and all booze are psychological depressants is in no small way responsible for the accelerating suicide rate. A cause-effect relationship is difficult to establish, but the increases in both are proportionate and parallel.

Singer Tony Orlando pulled himself up from Hell's Kitchen to Hollywood and suffered no psychological problems until he got rich and famous and spoiled.

When adversity struck — the loss of his TV program and the death of a retarded sister — he couldn't cope.

Confused, exhausted and emotionally shattered, he's hospitalized for an indeterminate period.

A related frustration — I have everything and nothing — caused the children of actors Dan Dailey, Gregory Peck and James Arness to end their lives in their twenties.

Among Americans, between the ages of 15 and 24, suicide is now the second-ranking cause of death — second only to accidents — and nobody knows how many of those are suicides.

The conclusion appears inescapable: We get spoiled. We come to believe that we are supposed to be constantly happy.

And nobody is. And some refuse to settle for less.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

You really can't blame our military experts for trying to talk the rest of the world powers into limiting their super weapons to neutron bombs which would kill people but spare the surrounding real estate from total destruction. After all, in view of the world's present population explosion, the loss of people might be a good thing. But at today's skyrocketing prices, the loss of land and buildings could be a national disaster.

Parking issue heating up

By MARTHA ANGLE
and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There are undoubtedly weightier issues confronting the Supreme Court these days than the constitutionality of local government efforts to ban commuter parking in residential neighborhoods.

But for those of us who struggle daily to surmount the multitudinous hazards of modern urban living, there is nothing like the looming legal shoot-out between city dwellers and suburban commuters to raise the blood pressure and set the old adrenalin racing.

Let it be said at the outset that we make no pretense of viewing with objectivity the case which Arlington County, Va. has thrust before the Supreme Court by attempting to protect its own residents from the seige of invading commuters.

Just try to be objective when you have experienced the dubious delight of walking out your front door in the morning to confront a solid rank of double-parked cars, engines revving, exhausts smoking, jockeying for a shot at any parking space vacated by a neighborhood resident.

Try staying cool when you drive your kid to school at 8:30 a.m. and return home to discover there's not a prayer of parking your car again until 6 p.m. when the commuters clear out for the suburbs.

You try it. As for us, we'll peg our hopes on Arlington County, San Francisco, Wilmington, Del., Cambridge, Mass. and all those other communities — including, at long last, the District of Columbia — which have adopted ordinances restricting parking privileges in congested urban areas to the residents of those neighborhoods.

For once, the Justice Department has plunged into the legal fray on the side of the good guys — which is to say, the side we happen to support.

In its "friend of the court" brief asking the Supreme Court to review the case, the Justice Department did not, of course, describe the disputed parking ban as a weapon in the war between city dwellers and suburbanites.

No indeed. That would sound . . . well, discriminatory, as the Virginia Supreme Court rather acidly suggested in its benighted decision striking down the Arlington County ordinance on grounds that no one is entitled to "A parking monopoly in the public streets."

The Justice Department, bless its inventive little soul has whopped up a more presentable argument: the Arlington County parking ban, and others like it elsewhere, help fight air pollution created by all those commuters' cars.

Now, everybody knows that air pollution is bad for people and other living creatures. And the Supreme Court itself has previously ruled, in other situations, that certain legislative acts which discriminate against particular classes of people or activities are perfectly permissible as long as they are "rationally related to a legitimate state interest."

The exception, the court has said, is any type of legislative classification which "trammels fundamental personal rights or is drawn upon inherently suspect distinctions such as race, religion or alienage . . ."

Cars obviously have no race, religion or ethnic heritage. And the use of a car, the court has held, is not a fundamental personal right. Fighting air pollution is clearly a "legitimate state interest." The Justice Department says the United States of America is all for it, even if the battle requires a little discrimination.

"Any program to reduce pollution, including restrictions on non-resident parking, imposes hardships on those who must alter their behavior, but the existence of such hardships is inevitable," the department says in its brief.

Hard cheese, commuters. Uncle Sam is on our side in this little skirmish, so take a bus to work, pay to park in a downtown garage, or come sample the joys of city life — like free street parking.

Canine can't get message

DEAR DR. MILLER: Every night after work, it's the same story — we come home to a torn-up house. We can tell Missy's been at it again because she crawls over to us looking guilty as the devil. My husband screams and whistles the daylight out of her, but the next night it's the same thing. Why, when she knows she's doing wrong and is going to get punished for it, does Missy — she's a dog — persist in tearing up the place? — K.E.

DEAR K.E.: What Missy "knows" is that a torn-up house plus her master's return equals (for her) fear and pain. She doesn't, however, associate her punishment with the ACT of chewing, but only with the results. Excessive punishment, especially when it doesn't teach the dog to avoid the situation, can cause undesirable behavior patterns to develop, as well as undesirable permanent psychological and physiological damage.

An animal behavior specialist can help you with an effective training program, and can provide suggestions for re-directing Missy's drives into other, more acceptable, outlets.

DEAR DR. MILLER: How long should a bird with a broken bone remain in a splint? — R.D.

DEAR R.D.: On the average, an avian splint should remain on approximately a month. Some casts may safely be removed in three weeks, or less. A few cases require such support for five weeks or longer.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our family horse is an ex-racehorse. She has a lot of pep which makes it hard for me to ride her. My mother has ridden much longer than I, since she can ride her — but I'm still not a good enough rider to ride her. She's had four colts. My question is, lots of riders have told me that she might just act as if I were one of her colts, or take care of me because I'm so small and she can sense I'm a child. Would it be safe for me to ride her now, or should I wait till I'm a better rider and a little more confident? — N.F.

DEAR N.F.: Confidence helps. Being a better rider would help even more. This mare might make allowances for your age, but don't bet on it. Semi-retired racehorses aren't often easy riders. It could be a long way from her back to the ground, especially if the trip down was her idea and not yours.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Wednesday, Aug. 17, 1977
Your Birthday, Aug. 17, 1977

There is a strong possibility of income from other than your regular sources this year. The chances are excellent if you associate with one who is familiar within a particular field.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you're involved in a new enterprise, do as much of the legwork as you can yourself today. Avoid laying out any cash until it's absolutely necessary. Find out more of what lies ahead for you by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019.

Be sure to specify your birth sign.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The best way to get the boss's eye today is to be a producer. Do what you know how to do best without any fanfare.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's some opportunity around you today, but it's the kind of thing you'll blow if you try to do it hastily. Plan each move carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Business conditions are generally favorable today, but there's a person who could stymie you. Steer clear of anyone whose judgment you don't trust.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There are those in your corner who can give you a boost today, but their power is limited. Be prepared to paddle your own canoe.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may work very diligently today and be disappointed by faint praise. Perhaps no more than that is due you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Social situations set up in advance should be allowed to come off as planned. Attempting last-minute changes could spoil everyone's fun.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Without making waves, try to dissuade your mate from embarking on any seemingly impractical course. It could spell trouble if you go along with it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't make lavish promises to get people to do things for you today. Be sure what you offer is in line with what you'll receive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a bit of a high roller today. Chances are you'll toss away a few dollars on far-out speculation or for luxury items.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you'll bend over backward to help people you want to impress. Unfortunately, you might ignore deserving parties.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unconsciously you might not appreciate what others are doing for you and not reciprocate. You can overcome this if you recognize it in time.

Ann Landers

She's wise beyond her years

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a Prayer for Parents. I thought it was beautiful. And now I have composed a prayer for children. I hope you will give it equal time. — Young And Wishing God in heaven, I am young and don't understand what it is like to be a parent, but it must be very hard because so many people are failing at it these days.

I pray for Mom and Dad, God, that You will help them to be good parents — strong in the ways you want them to be, so I can look up to them with admiration and feel confident that their instruction is right.

Help me, dear Lord, to understand my parents. Remind me that when I don't get my way it is because they love me and not because they want to be mean or deprive me of anything.

Help me, God, when I become stubborn and refuse to listen, to accept the fact that they have wisdom and experience because they were once teenagers, but I have never been a parent.

Put in my heart the respect and consideration they deserve for their years of hard work and sacrifice. They raised me the best way they knew how. Let me not repay them with grief and shame. Rather help me to give them obedience, respect, forgiveness and love. Most of all, God, while I still have them here on earth, help me to appreciate my parents.

Dear Young and Wishing: You may be young, but you are wise beyond your years. Thanks so much for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are invited often to eat dinner at his brother's house. His wife is a nice person and we all get along fine. But she is a terrible housekeeper and to make matters worse, they have a couple of huge cats that have the run of the place.

A few weeks ago my sister-in-law put a can of cat food on the kitchen cabinet — next to the meal she had prepared for us. The big Tom jumped up on the cabinet, walked over the dinner rolls and swished his tail through the meatballs and cabbage. My husband and I both saw this and we lost our appetites completely.

Since that incident, my husband refuses to eat at their house and I am running out of excuses. He says I can't tell them the real reason because it would only start trouble. Any suggestions, Ann? — Crossfire In Nameless City

Dear Fire: Just say your husband has developed a preference for eating at home (which is no lie) and while you aren't crazy about the idea there's nothing you can do but comply with his request.

Dear Ann: Yesterday I answered the phone and there was gasping and heavy breathing on the line. I thought either someone was having a heart attack or this was one of those "funny calls."

After I hung up I wondered if people who are in trouble know they can dial 0 for Operator and get help immediately. Even in the dark, a person who can't find his glasses can dial 0 — the last digit on the phone. Knowing this will give folks a sense of security. Tell 'em, Annie. — Oshkosh

Dear Oshkosh: You told 'em, by gosh, and I thank you.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers's booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. Erma Bombeck

You can tell when they notice

A mother wrote last week and said, "My son is so shy and uncommunicative I probably won't know he is going through puberty until he has passed it."

Boys are like that. If my son came home and found me unconscious on the kitchen floor, he'd yell in my unconscious ear, "What's for snack?"

Actually, there is only one sure-fire, telltale, infallible way of telling whether or not your son has discovered that girls need more padding on a softball team than boys do.

I call it the Shower Syndrome.

For four or five years, the only contact my sons had with water was a sponge in the back of the church filled with holy water. I had the only kids on the block who could take a shower and not get their hair, trousers or shoes wet.

I nagged them to death about it.

"Did you take a bath?"

"I went swimming."

"Did you wash your hands?"

"I washed the one that was dirty. See?"

"Why don't you take a shower?"

"Where are we going?"

Then, for no apparent reason, we heard the water running... and running. And running. And running.

"What is he doing in the shower this long?" asked my husband.

"Washing away his sins."

"He has just discovered girls."

"When is he going to discover that we only have a 30-gallon hot water tank and he emptied that to wash his hair?"

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness," I quoted.

"Billy Graham isn't that religious."

"Look," I said, "I know a body left in water three days is not attractive, and you know it, but the point is, he doesn't know it."

If you can't hear the water running, there are still other clues to your son's discovery of the opposite sex. He will use a can of deodorant a day... for each arm... each time he takes a shower. He will use mouthwash like it runs free out of the tap. As for shampoo, I never thought I would see the day when I would hide two tablespoons of shampoo in the tea canister so I could wash my hair over the weekend.

As my husband observed the other day as he stepped from his cold shower, brushed his teeth with baking soda, squirted hair spray under each arm and gargled with a cup of coffee, "I think I liked 'em better when they were dirty."

DEAR DR. LAMB — A couple of months ago I turned yellow and my urine turned brown. The doctor said I was gallstones.

I had my gall bladder out 38 years ago, but the doctor did not let me go until he had operated. I had no pain and he showed me two stones that look like bing cherry stones. All gallstones I have seen before were green.

Can stones come back again? My bowels look black since my operation most of the time. An old nurse told me if you have bleeding this happens.

DEAR READER — You are describing jaundice that does occur when the bile duct is obstructed — as with a stone. Even though you had your gall bladder removed years ago you still may form bile and the bile still drains through the bile ducts into your intestine.

The bile is formed by the liver and the pigments in the bile give the characteristic brown to black or green color of the bowel movement.

When the bile duct is obstructed for whatever reason these pigments cannot drain into your intestine and they build up in your blood stream. This causes jaundice as the pigment permeates the skin. The blood is filtered by the kidneys and some of the increased pigment is eliminated in the urine causing the colored urine you experienced.

There are several different kinds of gallstones. I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-9, Gallstones and Gall Bladder Disease to give you more information. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to P.O. Box 1551,

Mystery about voice machine

The electronics wizards long ago invented a music synthesizing machine that can reproduce any voice ever recorded, then make that voice say or sing whatever's desired. Enrico Caruso, for instance, could be heard to sing country western, seemingly. Sen. Barry Goldwater might be listened to on the radio as though in declaration of his own new membership in the Communist Party. And President Jimmy Carter, conceivably, could be represented in a telephone call to Playboy magazine to request another interview, this one to disclose erotic experiences of naval personnel. Odd you don't hear much about that machine, isn't it?

Q. Name the three smallest countries in the world?

Surely you've heard certain women referred to as "beautiful but dumb." In Proverbs 11:22, Solomon put it differently: "As a jewel in a swine's snout, so is a fair woman which is without discretion."

CREDIT RISKS

A credit company executive with a new computer and some spare time on his hands has learned that people whose surnames begin with the letter "R" tend to be the best payers while those whose names start with "E" seem to be the most difficult to collect from. No doubt this is just a matter of chance, peculiar to the customers in his company only. Still, he checked the records back over a dozen years, and his results came out about the same each year.

Jacoby's bridge

Garozzo ducks for bonus

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Benito Garozzo of Italy has long been regarded as one of the best, if not the best bridge player of today. Here we see him picking up an extra 300 points against a four-spade, doubled contract.

The play was such that we doubt if many of you readers will see how Benito managed to set South more than one trick after the heart lead.

Here is Benito's play. He won the heart with his ace and led his singleton trump. South won and led a diamond to dummy's queen, whereupon Beniot started to develop one of the finest swindles of all time. He simply played a low diamond.

South led back dummy's last diamond and Benito played low again!

Now declarer went into deep thought. Obviously, West held the diamond ace. Who held the 10? Finally, South decided that Benito had started with four diamonds to the 10. He stuck in his nine of diamonds and West collected one of the surprise tricks of all time, when he won a trick with the 10.

Actually, Benito risked nothing but ducking two diamonds. South was marked with five and since dummy held but one trump, Benito was sure to make his ace before the hand was over.

Ask the Jacobys

A Louisiana reader wants to know if we respond two notrump to partner's opening one-diamond bid with:

Pro golfers are perfect gentlemen

Golfers are the aristocrats of professional sports. They drive the swankiest cars, wear the fleeciast sweaters, enjoy the rules of decorum and a proper relationship with the public and press.

Their etiquette guidelines are dictated by Emily Post and Amy Vanderbilt. Every golf bag has a special pocket for Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People." They don't write many letters to Dear Abby.

The guys who make their living trying to speed or impede the progress of that pumped-up, oblong object called a football or hit and throw the baseball—as well as those who pursue basketball and hockey careers—would do well to examine their golf counterparts and duplicate.

If such were the case, you wouldn't have the Yankees' Billy Martin shoving newsmen out of the locker room, Cincinnati's George Foster going into an isolation booth, tennis ace Ilie Nastase spurning a post-match interview and quarterback Joe Namath pulling one of those Greta Garbo "I Want to Be Alone" routines.

In today's billion-dollar sports explosion, which has created instant millionaires and made show-business idols out of skilled athletes in short pants, the par-wreckers somehow have found the key to coping with the pressures of such success.

Throw the lot of them onto a practice green and the only way you can tell them apart is the putting grip they use.

Accent on youth

Although you have a sprinkling of Arnold Palmers and Gene Littlers, still going strong in their 40's, the accent is on youth. Most of them are lean and keen, always immaculately attired and perfectly poised.

This must be quite obvious to TV audiences, watching the players in twosomes and threesomes parading across their screens in their striped rugby shirts, blending slacks and $80 shoes.

Few people possess more lavish wardrobes. Virtually every pro golfer is subsidized by clothing manufacturers who inundate him with shirts, slacks and shoes by the gross. Golf balls, in boxes of a dozen, are handed out like Popsicles.

"The players have a lot of natural pride in their appearance," says Tom Place, communications director of the PGA who follows the sun and the tour.

"There is a paragraph in the regulation book about appearance and it is rigidly enforced by Jack Tuthill, the tournament director. There are no beards or shaggy hair styles. This is not spelled out in writing—but it is understood. If a player on the tour is seen letting his appearance get out of line, he will be discreetly reminded by the other players.

"The players police themselves. They pair up in almost every tournament in a pro-am with the business leaders of the community. It's these people that pour money into pro golf tournaments. Players aren't about to blow it."

Blue jeans nixed

Place said the strict hair rules do not attempt to erode a player's independence or to suggest that a bearded golfer couldn't shoot as well as one with a shaven chin. "It's largely a voluntary thing. It's the nature of the game. The guys are natural conformists."

There is also a rule that a player cannot wear blue jeans in a tournament. "It's okay in practice, but not when there is a chance of being exposed on television," Place said.

Gary McCord, who has perhaps the biggest and most expensive collection of jeans in the business, was invited to a TV special in the Quad Cities Open at Moline, Ill. Friends feared he might show up looking like a cowboy dude. Instead he appeared in a velvet-lapelled tuxedo replete with lace shirt and cuffs.

The post-match interview in golf has become one of the richest traditions of the game, enjoyed by newsmen and golfers alike. It is staged like a presidential press conference. Golfers use the occasion to fence with their critics and unload their funniest lines.

Even golf's renowned "Quiet Man," Gene Littler, gets into the spirit of the occasion.

Questioned about his fetish for antique cars, he was asked how many Rolls-Royces he had parked in his yard.

"Four," Gene replied. "Doesn't everyone?"

Halicki loves Dodger Stadium

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ed Halicki of the San Francisco Giants likes Dodger Stadium — he has beaten Los Angeles there in five straight games.

"I've said it before. I love pitching here. This is a great mound and a great park to pitch in," said the 10-9 righthanded pitcher after a 6-3 victory Monday night.

The Giants have defeated the Dodgers only twice in 11 meetings this year and Halicki owns both victories.

"They beat me twice in Candlestick and I beat them twice here," he said. "I guess we can call it even."

Two errors by the Dodgers led to three San Francisco runs. Lamented Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda: "We gave them three of the runs. Without those three, we're still playing."

The other half of the Giants' runs, came on homers off losing pitcher Rick Rhoden, 13-8. Terry Whitfield hit a two-run homer in the second, when the Giants scored four times, and Derrel Thomas homered in the fourth.

The Dodgers' three runs were also the result of homers. Bill Russell homered in the third with Dave Lopes aboard and Lee Lacey hit a pinch home run in the fifth.

Joe Frazier ready for 4th Ali fight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former heavyweight champ Joe Frazier says there's no rabbit's blood in his veins. If current king Muhammad Ali wants a fourth fight, Frazier says he's ready.

Frazier said Monday night that he had read news accounts from Europe quoting Ali as saying he would be willing to fight Frazier again. Ali holds a 2-1 edge in their meetings, which are regarded as boxing classics.

"When I was there I gave everybody their shot," Frazier said, "and when I was coming up I fought them all. I didn't bypass anybody. He made the statement, and I'm not going to run away from it."

"You know I ain't got no rabbit's blood in me. If the guy wants to take me on again, you know I'm not going to run," added Frazier, who now performs in a night club act but still runs a gym here.

"I'm booked up for maybe two or three months, but if the champ says he wants to face Ol' Smokey again, I'm ready," said Frazier.

"I understand he said in Europe that he would give me one more shot. I'll go back at it again, and I'll get back out of it with my head on my shoulders again."

Frazier, now 33 and weighing 228 pounds, said he works out at least every other day at his gym and could be in shape for a rematch within two or three months.

Frazier also said he's not afraid of critics who might accuse him of seeking a rematch simply for the money.

"I don't think that anybody that knows Smokin' Joe Frazier will say that," he said. "I'm doing it because I'm sincere about it."

"I've been in the fighting business 17 years. I'm sincere about my business. It's not the money. It's something that I like."

Frazier scored a fifth-round knockout over Jimmy Ellis in February, 1970, to gain the heavyweight title after Ali had been stripped of the crown for his refusal to enter military service.

Frazier lost the title in January, 1973, when he was knocked out by George Foreman in the second round at Kingston, Jamaica. Frazier has been knocked out only three times in his career.

Ali decided Frazier in 12 rounds at New York in January, 1974, and scored a 14th round technical knockout over Frazier six months later in the "Thrilla in Manila."

Frazier announced his retirement after he was knocked out a second time by Foreman in the fifth round of a fight at Uniondale, N.Y., in June, 1976.

There could be more than money in a rematch for the boastful Ali, who Frazier to this day continues to call by the champ's former name, Cassius Clay.

"If he can knock me down, I'll finally call him Ali. Up 'till then, it's still Clay," said Frazier.

John selected player of week

NEW YORK (AP) — Los Angeles pitcher Tommy John, the Comeback Player of the Year last season, was named the National League Player of the Week, league President Chub Feeney announced Monday.

John, the Dodgers' ace lefthander, had a pair of complete game shutouts last week, tossing a two-hitter at Cincinnati and a six-hitter against Atlanta.

John has a 14-4 record with a league-leading 2.58 earned run average.

Other candidates for the honor were pitcher Butch Metzger of St. Louis, and outfielders Dave Winfield of San Diego and Dave Parker of Pittsburgh.

Johnny Bench has a long psychological explanation for the fall of the Cincinnati Reds this year.

But in a word, they're "pooped."

"We're just mentally exhausted after five years of tough play," Cincinnati's All-Star catcher says. "It isn't the pressure of going after a third straight world championship. Those entire five years just took their toll—and it's all coming out this year."

With the Reds' 3-0 victory over the San Diego Padres Monday night, they managed to save themselves from falling back to the .500 mark—a modest figure not in keeping with their recent glory years.

The Reds won as many as 106 games in one season during their high-flying, five-year stretch from 1972 through 1976. They captured three National League pennants and two World Series in that period.

The high-powered competition not only seems to have "burned out" the Reds, Bench says, but the high salaries attached to the success have caused widespread apathy as well.

"Money has something to do with it," says Bench. "You can only be motivated so long. You've seen us play this year. You see our lapses. We're making bad plays that are simply not like the real Cincinnati Reds."

"It's a mental problem, not physical."

The Reds' victory improved their unspectacular record to 60-58 and left them 11 games behind Los Angeles after the Dodgers dropped a 6-3 decision to the San Francisco Giants Monday night.

In other National League games, the New York Mets defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-4 and the Houston Astros walloped the Atlanta Braves 15-3.

Another of Cincinnati's problems this year has been the off-season of Jack Billingham, one of their top pitchers. Billingham, relegated to the bullpen in recent days, was given a rare start against the Padres and responded with a two-hit performance over seven innings to gain his first victory in two months.

Billingham, 9-9, retired 16 of the first 17 batters he faced to outduel Cy Young winner Randy Jones, 5-9, and snap a personal six-game losing streak. Bench's run-scoring triple gave the Reds a 1-0 lead in the second and his 27th homer of the year, a solo shot in the fourth, made it 3-0.

Billingham, who entered the game with a 5.53 ERA, permitted a second-inning single to Gene Tenace, then mowed down 11 straight Padres before walking pinch-hitter Pat Scanlon with one out in the sixth. Gene Richards followed with a single, but Billingham quickly quelled the threat.

Tanana wins on 'off-night'

TORONTO (AP) — Veteran catcher Andy Etchebarren is in a position to know what makes good pitchers great, having spent 13 seasons in the major leagues.

"Any pitcher can win when he's got his stuff, but when you're able to win when you haven't got good stuff, then you're a great pitcher," said the California Angels player-coach.

That was how he described Frank Tanana's performance Monday night as the ace left-hander overcame some shaky moments early and went on to strike out 11 in the Angels 7-4 decision over the Toronto Blue Jays.

"The same was true when I caught (Dave) McNally and (Mike) Cuellar. They also had the ability to win on off-nights."

"His curve ball wasn't good tonight and he hardly threw it in the later innings," added Etchebarren, who paced the Angels' nine-hit attack with three singles in four at-bats. He even stole a base in the fourth inning.

Tanana, 14-7, gave up a total of 11 hits, three in each of the first and fourth innings as the Blue Jays picked up a pair of runs on both occasions. However, he thwarted the Blue Jays the rest of the way, giving up a seventh-inning single to Bob Bailor and base hits to pinch-hitter Hector Torres and Steve Staggs in the ninth.

Tony Solaita aided his cause with a two-run homer, his ninth of the season, which came in the fifth off reliever Jerry Johnson and provided the Angels with their final two runs.

"Every time I go out it's a struggle," said Tanana who has been bothered with tightness in his elbow which caused him to miss two starts earlier in the season. "I think I'm at about 70 per cent now, but I'm still going to win 20 — I think."

Toronto manager Roy Hartsfield, seeing Tanana pitch for the first time, said: "He was two different pitchers tonight. In the first four innings, I thought we had him and were going to win. But for the next five, he just dominates our hitters. He throws a changeup on 3-0 (to Doug) Rader for a strike, and then to show it wasn't a freak, he comes right back with another for a strike. He showed me right there what kind of pitcher he is."

The Angels struck for two runs of their own in the first off loser Jesse Jefferson, 7-13, without the benefit of a hit. Thad Bosley and Jerry Remy drew walks and Bobby Bonds bounced into a force at third. But Roy Howell threw wildly to first trying to erase Bonds, sending Remy to third and Bonds to second. After Solaita was walked intentionally, Don Baylor's sacrifice fly scored Remy and sent Bonds to third. He came in with the second run on the front end of a double steal.

The Blue Jays scored twice in their half of the inning on a one-out triple by Steve Staggs, Bailor's single and a hit-and-run double by Rader. Baylor's double, a single by Rance Mulliniks, Howell's second throwing error of the game and a base hit by Etchebarren produced three California runs in the fourth.

NBA rules against Jazz

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The National Basketball Association says Leonard Robinson can be awarded as compensation to any team in the league, even though he wants to play in New Orleans. Robinson says he cannot. And therein, another test case lies.

"We signed Robinson to a contract knowing full well the league would not accept it," New Orleans Jazz General Manager Lewis Schaffel said Monday after that pact was nullified by NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien. "Leonard knew the league would not accept it."

"But he would not sign a contract which would let him be awarded as compensation. And there were many teams interested in Leonard Robinson. So we signed him to a contract without that sentence in there."

As part of the NBA collective bargaining agreement with it players and the settlement of the so-called Robertson suit, the commissioner may award compensation to a team losing a player who plays out his contract and signs with another team. That award may include draft choices, cash and/or veteran players.

O'Brien said in his ruling Monday that no one is exempt from being part of a free agent compensation award even if he does have a no-trade clause like Robinson, who signed with the Jazz in July after playing out his option at Atlanta.

"A team and a player," said O'Brien, "by agreement between themselves, have no authority to limit the commissioner's right to assign any contracts as compensation."

Namath out with flu

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Tight end Charles Young, who just ended his holdout, joined the Rams for the first time Monday in drills at Los Angeles' Fullerton State training camp, but quarterback Joe Namath had a slight case of flu and was missing from practice.

Young, acquired from the Eagles during an offseason trade that sent quarterback Ron Jaworski to Philadelphia, came to terms with the team over the weekend. He is a former Southern California All-American.

The Rams viewed films of Saturday's 20-3 preseason victory over the Eagles prior to the practice session.

In that game, rookie cornerback Curtis Royall suffered torn ligaments in his knee and had to undergo surgery Sunday. A team spokesman said the free agent from USIU would be out for the rest of the season.

The Rams also announced that they waived defensive back Don Berton, a free agent out of Fullerton State.

Los Angeles, 1-1 in preseason, plays, meets the 49ers Sunday in San Francisco.

Bench: Reds 'mentally exhausted'

Reliever Pedro Borbon allowed two hits in two innings and notched his 12th save of the year for the Reds.

"I don't know if I earned my way out of the bullpen with tonight's performance," said Billingham. "It's still a day-today thing, because I know (Manager) Sparky Anderson wants to go with the younger pitchers on this staff."

Mets 7, Cardinals 4

John Milner drove in four runs with two doubles, triggering rallies in the first and fifth innings that sent New York over St. Louis. The Mets reached John Denny, 7-5, for three runs in the first and drove the Cardinal starter from the mound with four more runs in the fifth.

New York righthander Craig Swan, 8-7, checked the Cards on five hits until surrendering all the St. Louis runs in the eighth, when he received relief help from Bob Apodaca.

"I just got real tired," said Swan, who threw 130 pitches during his stint. "I was exhausted."

Astros 15, Braves 3

Houston scored six runs in the first inning on a two-run homer by Rob Sperring and a grand slam by Art Howe and went on to rout Atlanta behind the combined five-hit pitching of righthanders J.R. Richard and Dan Larson.

Bob Watson and Joe Ferguson each doubled home a run in a three-run second inning and Richard had a solo homer in a two-run third, staking the Astros to a commanding 11-0 lead. They added four more runs in the sixth, the key hit being a two-run triple by Terry Puhl.

Richard, 12-9, left the game after the fifth when his arm stiffened slightly.

"That was certainly an ugly game, wasn't it?" said Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol, apparently echoing a widespread opinion in the Braves' clubhouse.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS CALLING FOR BIDS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Bonita Unified School District of Los Angeles County, California, acting by and through its Governing Board, hereinafter referred to as the District, will receive up to, but not later than 3:00 P.M. on the 24th day of August, 1977, sealed bids for the award of the contract for: RELOCATE CLASSROOM BUILDING AT LA VERNE HEIGHTS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL.

All bids shall be made on a bid form furnished by the Architect. Bids shall be received in the office of the Assistant Superintendent-Business Services, Bonita Unified School District, 115 West Allen Avenue, San Dimas, California 91773. Bids shall be opened and publicly read aloud at the above stated time and place.

Each bid must conform and be responsive to the contract documents, copies of which are now on file in the office of the Architect, Cashion-Horrie Architects, Inc., 1100 West Main Street, Suite 200, Pomona, California and the District Administration Office, above address. Plans and specifications and all pertinent contract documents may be obtained for bidding at the office of the Architect, upon execution in writing the form "Acknowledgement of Receipt of Plans and Specifications." This form requires the payment of $25.00 by the bidder to the District if bidder fails to return the plans and specifications in good condition within 10 days after the opening of bids.

Each bid shall be accompanied by the security referred to in the contract documents and the list of proposed subcontractors. The Director of Industrial Relations, State of California, has ascertained the prevailing rate of per diem wages in dollars, based on a working day of eight hours, for each craft or type of workman or mechanic required to execute the contract.

The above-mentioned prevailing wage rates are incorporated herein. The Contractor is required to pay prevailing wage rates and, pursuant to Section 1775, Labor Code (State of California), he shall forfeit twenty-five percent of the contract price, or portion thereof, for the workman or mechanic less than the stipulated prevailing rates for any public work done under him or by a subcontractor under him. The Contractor is hereby required to post a copy of the above-mentioned prevailing wage rates at each job site.

The District reserves the right to reject any and all bids or to waive any irregularities or informalities in any bids or in the bidding.

Preference will be made in the award for California made supplies, pursuant to Section 4330 and 4334, inclusive, Government Code.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of sixty (60) days after the date set for the opening of bids.

TWA's Chicago.

each way

Starting
Sept. 1st

TWA creates Super CoachSM with our lowest unrestricted fare in 17 years.

TWA Super Coach Savings.

TWA has just created a new kind of service that enables us to reduce the airfare to Chicago dramatically.

It's called Super Coach.

And it's on all our non-stop planes to Chicago.

When Super Coach goes in, the fare drops from $159 to an unbeatable $89. You save an incredible $70 each way, $140 round trip.

Since this is our new regular non-stop fare to Chicago, you can just make your reservations and go.

There are no advance booking requirements.

No minimum or maximum stays.

No restrictions of any kind.

Service starts September 1st, subject to CAB approval.

And since we anticipate heavy demand for these flights, we recommend that you make your reservations now. During the first week (Sept. 1st thru Sept. 7th) you can leave from Los Angeles at 2:15 pm. Or leave from Chicago at 9 am. Beginning Sept. 8th you can leave from Los Angeles at 12 noon or 11:45 pm. Or from Chicago at 9 am or 6:45 pm.

No restrictions of any kind

You Save

way

TWA Super Coach Service.

Although we slashed the airfare on Super Coach, you'll still enjoy good quality service. You'll sit in comfortable new seats, enjoy free beverage service,* free stereo and movie shorts.

Special Service: $10 extra

To keep the fare as low as possible, the $89 Super Coach does not include meal service. For those who would like a meal, however, we also offer a $99 Super Coach fare that includes food service.

On lunch flights you'll be served a delicious steak with a shrimp cocktail and beverage service.* And on the late night flight you get a delicious steak sandwich.

You wanted lower airfares to Chicago, and TWA has found a way to do it.

Super Coach Chicago. You save an incredible $70 each way. So see your Travel Agent or call TWA.

*Nominal charge for alcoholic beverages.
